JESSIE WILSON IS NOT TO PROMISE TO OBEY HUSBAND

The elders—that is the relatives and members of the immediate family of the bride and groom, were the guests of the president and Mrs. Wilson at dinner at the white house. Secy. McAdoo was the only official present. The guests were grouped together in the state dining room amid decorations of palms and lilies and under the brilliant glow of silver chandeliers and crystal pendants.

Present Happy Scene.

Just before the dinner, as the younger set prepared to motor to the navy yard, persons walking through the grounds caught a glimpse of the bride party, the girls in handsome gowns and robes and the ushers, groom and groom in evening attire. It was a happy scene, a reunion of companions of school and college days. Three white house motors drew up under the north portico, moment later and the party of 12 whirled away to the navy yard.

It was the last event of a day of animation throughout official Washington. The news that the members of the diplomatic corps had decided at the last minute to wear their resplendent uniforms heightened interest in the event and it promises to be as brilliant a function as has ever taken place in the executive mansion. The diplomats wore convention morning dress at the Roosevelt wedding.

Monday Jules Jusserand, the French ambassador at present dean of the corps, sent word to the diplomats that as a special compliment to the president, the ambassadors and ministers would be expected to appear in their full uniforms. These, together with the uniforms of the military and naval aides, will lend a little more of the official atmosphere than was at first expected.

Rehearsal is Held.

Monday's rehearsal took place in the east room where Tuesday hundreds of guests in handsome dress will be gathered.

The bride party has been variously entertained by their hosts. Secy. Bryan had given a luncheon for Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the best man, at which clergymen of every denomination were present. Carriages and automobiles were passing to and fro rapidly in the white house grounds. The president followed his game of golf and devoted the afternoon to the wedding preparations.

The bridal party assembled in the state dining room and to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by the United States Marine band, and they issued forth two, moving in slow step along the red-carpeted corridor that borders the red, blue and green rooms, and passes into the historic east room, where an altar massed in palms and flowers has been erected.

Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., and Dr. Gilbert Horrax, the first two ushers, were escorted by a uniformed aide. They were followed by Dr. Dewitt Scoville Clark and Benj. R. Burton. First in the procession of bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, the president's youngest daughter, and Miss Agnes White of Baltimore, then Miss Angeline Mitchell Scott of Princeton, N. J., and Miss Marjorie Brown of Atlanta. The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Wilson, walked alone followed by the brides, leaning on the arm of the president. The procession was repeated twice, on the exit march, the band playing Mendelssohn's wedding march.

After the rehearsal Mrs. Wilson served tea to the party and the company separated for the evening functions.

Guests Are Arriving.

A large number of guests arrived Monday night and while a few stopped with friends here, the majority went to hotels where yellow chrysanthemums and floral decorations generally, recalled the festive days of the inauguration season. Dr. Henry Garfield, president of Williams college and a son of the martyred president, was among the arrivals Monday. Mr. Sayre is to be assistant to Pres. Garfield.

Among the guests at the white house during the day were Mrs. Robert H. Sayre, mother of the groom; Joseph R. Wilson, a brother of the president and Mrs. Walker of Moore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Legare Walker of Somerville, S. C.; cousins of Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Robert Ewing of Nashville, a cousin of Mrs. Wilson, and John A. Wilson of Franklin, Pa., a cousin of the president.

WEDDING GIFTS ARE MAGNIFICENT

White House Bride Will Take Gifts Valued at $250,000 to Her New Home in Williamsburg.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Magnificent and tasteful gifts in a bewildering array met the eyes of the guests at the wedding in the White House Tuesday. It had been thought that Miss Wilson would be less remembered than Alice Roosevelt, but such an unfavorable comparison cannot be made with much assurance now. The gifts have poured in up to the hour of the wedding and although no estimate has been made and never will be, the worth in money of the beautiful and useful things which Mrs. Sayre will bring to her new home in Williamsburg, Mass., will not be much under $250,000.

A list of all her presents would indeed be tedious and when she takes pen in hand to send letters of thanks, a colossal task will be before her unless she has the assistance of an amanuensis. Here is a partial list.

From the United States senate—A solid silver tea set, costing $1,000, of colonial design and comprising a water kettle, a tray, a chocolate pot, an ice cream dish, two compotes and four candlesticks. Besides, this many senators gave individual presents.

Three Dinner Sets.

Three magnificent dinner sets of solid silver. One of these consists of over one hundred and eighty pieces, valued at $8,000, of a typical Georgian floral design, trimmed with wreaths of flowers.

Two handsome punch bowls with a dozen mugs, all in silver. OneA bowl is in dull and the other satin finish.

From the United States supreme court—A large silver centerpiece carved, bowl-shaped, standing about nine inches from the base, with a raised silver wire flower holder on the top.

A water color painting on vellum of the Wilson coat of arms, the work and gift of Mrs. Jessie Porter Wood, of Washington.

From the Italian ambassador and Marchesa Cusani-Colonieri—A set of four ornately engraved silver candlesticks.

From the house of representatives, each member contributing $5—A pendant and chain of diamonds, eighty-five stones set around a large yellow diamond in the center of an ornament. The large stone is 1 1/4 carats in weight and is perfect in cut.

Gold and Silver.

A silver dish set, consisting of platter, plates, forks, serving knife and fork, suitable for a dozen persons.

A vase of solid gold, fourteen carats, standing twenty-five inches high, severely plain excepting a wide band of filigree work about the neck.

A coffee set of slender delicate pattern.

Several sugar and cream sets. Several bottles and boxes of cut glass with silver filigree.

Many bracelets, earrings, rings and brooches.

A bracelet of rubies and diamonds, set all the way around.

From a resident of Washington—A silver inkstand.

A chafin dish of silver and a silver tray. The dish has a scroll design and a little silver terrapin forms the knob at the top. The handle of the dish, of ivory, forms a terrapin head.

A silver tea set, consisting of five pieces and a tray, of octagon shape and very heavy.

$1,800 Tea Set.

Another diamond tea set, said to be valued at $1,800. There are six silver pieces and a tray in one of the oldest English designs.

An ice cream set of solid silver, consisting of a serving plate and twelve smaller plates, elaborately etched, the gift of a resident of Washington.

A set of Lenox china, consisting of a platter and twelve plates, each having a different fish, three painted, in the center and a gold edge.

to pay for lighting figured down to a trifle less than $16,000—a saving of $26,000, as he sees it, out of the $42,000 annual lighting expense for which the ordinance provides.

Councilman Rice grew very costly on several occasions, in the course of his remarks, early in the address taking a considerable fall out of the Tribune, organ of real eloquent at one time and depicted it as what he termed the humorous side.

"It seems rather humorous to me," he said, "that only a little while ago the management of that paper was using its mightiest efforts to de throne from power the present mayor of our city, and now when this question of spending so much of the tax-payer's money is before us, it invites that gentlemen whose plumes it would pluck, to share its little trouble bed, where folded serenely in each other's arms they ask the taxpayers of South Bend to pay for the music that would lull them off to sleep."

But despite all this, and the applause it drew from the gallery where the citizen delegation and some 50 high school pupils of civil government were seated, Councilman Rice was not to get away without at least one jolt. It came with the suggestion from Pres. Howard that while the councilmen might be long on figures and theory, he apparently was not very well informed on the law of the subject, and referring to the language of the motion, asserted that its passage would merely serve to deprive the commission of anything to consider.

Howard scores Legal Point.

"I do not care to debate the question," said the president, after listening to a further address from Councilman Fink, "but until there is a contract between the city and the Indiana and Michigan, in order to confer jurisdiction, and a working basis, the commission has nothing to pass upon."

On this point seven of the councilmen, Howard, McCullough, Paidie, Krueger, Hagarty, Haas and Witucki, voted not to table the ordinance but to give it further consideration, preparatory for passage to third reading, and thus confer upon the utilities commission that jurisdiction, which it is asserted, the petitioners to the council have overlooked.

The council also passed by first and second reading, and referred to committee of the whole, an ordinance transferring $2,765 from the general fund to the park fund, and three other ordinances proposed by the board of public works, giving the park commission jurisdiction over North St. Louis street from South Bend avenue to Corby street, Riverside drive from Marion street to Angela avenue and Lafayette street, from Riverside drive to Monroe street for a part of the boulevard system.

JUSTICES MAY HAVE SALARIES CUT---SAY LAW IS CONFLICTING

One Act Provides for Salaries for Zinky and Hildebrand, the Other for Payment on Fee System—State Office Issues Order.

The remuneration of the office of justice of the peace in Portage township stands to be returned to the fee basis if a recent ruling of the state board of accounts remains unchanged.

Should the change be made Andrew N. Hildebrand and George W. Zinky, justices for this township, will receive approximately $400 or $500 less than the annual salary provided, which is $1,000.

The matter was brought up by a recent examination of the township trustees books by field examiners from the state board of accounts. It involves the interpretation of two acts of the last legislature. The local justices take the position that the acts are conflicting and that the word "one" was inserted where "two" was intended, and each of the board of accounts holds that one act supplements the other and they are to be construed together.

Both acts in question were passed on the same day of the legislative session. The first is entitled "an act presenting the number and fixing the compensation of justices of the peace." It provides that "in any township having a city or not less than 45,000 and not more than 100,000 population" there are to be but two justices, the fees collected by the justices are to be turned over to the township and "each of them, in lieu thereof, shall receive a salary at the rate of $1,000 per year," besides $150 for office rent if the justice does not furnish the office.

The second act concerns justices in townships having "one or more cities with a combined population of not less than 45,000 or more than 60,000." It provides a salary of $1,000 a year but attaches a string to the salary in these words: "In no event shall the compensation provided herein exceed the amount paid to the township trustee by the justice of the peace."

The state board of accounts has applied especially to North township in Lake county. There were two cities in the township and each wished two justices of the peace. The legislature granted this demand but supposedly to prevent a burden on the taxpayers of the township, put in the proviso that no more salary should be drawn than the amount of fees collected. It is said that the justices of the township are willing to serve on the fee basis because of the volume of their business.

Have Instructed Krueger.

The state board of accounts maintains that this act applies to Portage township and instructed Trustee Samuel Krueger to this effect. It seemed probable that this matter would find its way into the courts for judicial interpretation of the statutes.

Court action, if taken, however, will probably begin on the side of the state as the justices, having but one year in office, indicated they probably would not initiate action themselves.

If the state board of accounts files suit for the return of the salaries, it is probable that the township will be in a stallmate paid since the act was in effect this action will be contested, however, Justice Hildebrand said Tuesday. The salary is paid in quarterly installments and two payments have been made since the act went into effect.

"We think there is a conflict in the two acts and that a mistake was made in the text of the one which was passed last year," said Justice Hildebrand. "The intention of the legislature seems to have been that the act should apply to townships having a combined population of less than 45,000 or more than 60,000 instead of 'one or more' as the act reads."

Insurance Man Who Skipped Country After Hughes Investigation Marries Leishman's Daughter.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—James Hazen Hyde, former vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, was quietly married here Monday to Countess Louise De Gontaut-Biron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. A. Leishman of Pittsburgh.

There were two ceremonies, civil and religious. The official witnesses were the Duke of Croix, brother-in-law of the bride; Henry Lehr, Henry Clews and Myron T. Herriek, U. S. ambassador to France. REBELS WIN TWO BATTLES AT JUAREZ erals Salazar, Rojas, Caraveo and Landa, drove in Gen. Francisco Villa's skirmish line and developed separate engagements below Baucha on the west, at Tierra Blanca on the front and along the border opposite Belen and Ysleta, Tex., to the east.

More than 10,000 rebel and federal troops engaged in the three battles. Of this number, friends of Gen. Villa say he had 7,000 in his command while the federals are reported to number about 4,000.

The federals are said to have at least 20 per cent artillery while the rebel artillery division is made up of about 10 field guns and 15 machine guns.

The frontal attack on the constitutionalists under Gen. Villa began at 4:30 about 25 miles south of Juarez, according to an American chauffeur who reached Juarez at 6 o'clock Monday evening from Tierra Blanca. The artillery on both sides was engaged.

Flank Movement.

A report that the federals were attempting a flank movement from the west reached Juarez about the hour the frontal attack was reported.

Two hundred mounted men were despatched to Tancho Flores to hold the western mouth of the pass which entered the town from the west. Later reports stated that Gen. Villa's western flank under command of Gen. Rodriguez and Col. Talamantes had engaged the federals at 5 o'clock.

These reports came from American employees of the Mexican Northwestern railroad who reached Juarez Monday night from below Baucha. The reports stated that the federals were first repulsed in an attempt to break through the rebel lines but returned with reinforcements and a desperate battle was on when the Americans left.

Simultaneously with the report of the attack on the west came a report that the skirmish line of the constitutionalists on the east of Belen, Tex., was being driven in and the federals were advancing on Juarez.

Hurry Reinforcements.

The remainder of the rebel force at Juarez was rushed to the region opposite Ysleta and Belen, while fresh infantry reinforcements were hurried to Flores Rancho to help check the flank movement from the west.

On the American side, all troops at Fort Bliss were made ready for immediate action and troops of Thirtieth cavalry and a machine gun platoon were ordered to El Paso to reinforce the border patrol.

Reports from all sides at 7 o'clock declared that all the engagements were general. At that hour word was received from Gen. Villa that he was holding the federals back at the front and ordered ammunition and provisions rushed to Tierra Blanca.

Auxiliary hospitals and being tied up in Juarez Monday night, a large quantity of medical stores being exported from here.

Before the development of the federal assaults Gen. Villa reported that the federals withdrew several miles from their position at Samalayuca early Monday morning, reoccupied the position at 3 o'clock and immediately began an advance on the rebel positions seven miles north.

Advances Reinforced.

Late advices say the federals were reinforced during the day by federal troops from Chihuahua and reports reaching Juarez Monday night say that Gen. Pascual Orozco and Gen. Suroz brought 2,000 men and a machine gun platoon from the state capital and they engaged in the battle.

Reports reaching the United States border patrols east of Juarez Monday night stated that Gen. Pascual Orozco with 4,000 men attempted a charge from Samalayuca around the left wing of Gen. Villa's army to enter Juarez, but the rebel wing on the left reinforced by troops from Villa's main body and Orozco's forces were driven back.

The report also said that Chihuahua was evacuated by the federals and that the city had been occupied by rebel troops under Gen. Manuel Chao. Americans were ordered out of Juarez Monday night by Col. Juan N. Medina, commander of the rebel forces there. Detachments of rebel soldiers went through the streets arresting every American they met and escorting them to the international bridge, where they were deported.

Col. Medina explained this action as necessary to protect foreign interests of the rebel army meeting with defeat.

A train bearing eight dead and 17 wounded rebels reached Juarez Monday evening.

Robert Dorman, an American photographer who was with Villa when the battle started, returned on the train. He said Villa's men began the battle by opening fire on the federals as they approached Villa's main body of troops near Tierra Blanca. The federals immediately retreated to await reinforcement and later they returned, both armies keeping up a continual artillery fight, during the remainder of the afternoon.

At dusk Villa started a flank movement in the direction of Baucha and the federal army did likewise. The two armies met at a small hamlet, where fierce fighting took place, with heavy loss on both sides.

AMERICANS ARRIVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—Americans fleeing from the perils of life in Mexico told stories of adventure when they arrived Monday on the liner Peru from the Pacific coast points. Among the refugees were several women and children who had come from the heart of the trouble zone.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Davenport and their two children came from the midst of an Indian uprising in the state of Puebla and were under fire four hours in an armored car whose sheet iron sides would not stop the bullets of the attacking party. Eleven of the federal soldiers guarding the armored train were killed in this fight, but none of the Americans whose party included 12 women, was hurt.

The Indian uprising, Davenport said, was due largely to Huerta's land confiscation and military conscription policies among the Indians.

The republican reports show that Chas. W. Fairbanks gave $150; Geo. Bliss $500 and Fred R. Bonfield, $600.

COURT HOUSE NOTES.

Dorothea Malner was given judgment for $806, on account against Otto Zipperer, her son-in-law, in the superior court.

Edward Williams obtained judgment for $277.35 on a mechanic's lien against Ethel Davis.

The divorce suit of Rose Hickey against George Hickey was dismissed in the superior court.
